

Latin Education- Bachelor of Science in Education

This program offers students the opportunity to study the theory and practice of teaching the Latin language while simultaneously studying the language, literature, and culture of the Latin-speaking world. Critically oriented pedagogical courses complement the Latin literature and culture courses that explore the diversity of the Latin-speaking world. Study abroad is not required for Classical Studies, however, credits earned abroad may count toward the major.

By permission of the instructor and provided that they meet the program eligibility requirements, students may also earn up to 3 credits towards the major by serving as an Undergraduate Associate in a 100 or 200-level class. This experience is especially recommended for students considering a career in education. See the CDA for details.

Graduate work in Classics, Greek, Latin or Classical Archaeology requires not only appropriate experience reading Greek and Latin, but a reading knowledge of French or German as well. Students planning to go to graduate school should consult with the department as early as possible to design an appropriate course of study.

Note: Study abroad is not required in Latin education.
